NOSA hosts HSE seminar to Chinese delegation

14 June 2012

MICROmega Holdings Limited's subsidiary company NOSA (Pty) Ltd ("NOSA") is this week hosting a Health, Safety & Environment ("HSE") seminar for a delegation from China's State Development & Investment Corporation ("SDIC").

Seventeen delegates from China's SDIC will be attending training and update seminars on the latest developments in the HSE industry. During their visit the delegates will also be hosted by several of NOSA's clients to benchmark their own HSE performance against leading South African companies.

"In recent years NOSA has experienced demand for its products and services in regions such as China. Our products and services are recognised as an international benchmark in the management of HSE risks, and we are proud to impart our knowledge and assist international clients in meeting their HSE targets", says Gary Streek, NOSA Director. "Furthermore, China in particular has industrialised faster than any other country. As such the drive towards improving occupational health standards in the country has increased", says Streek.

SDIC, established in 1995, is one of NOSA's largest international clients with $44bn (R372bn) of total assets and a workforce of over 80,000 employees. SDIC was ranked among top-class enterprises in the annual performance assessments by State-owned Assets Supervision and Administration Commission of the Chinese State Council (SASAC) for the seventh consecutive year and has been awarded the title 'Excellent-Performing Enterprise' for six consecutive years.

"SDIC is seen as a leading organisation in China, promoting national economic development for the country. It is therefore a feather in our cap that they are using NOSA as a source of information on leading HSE practices", says Greg Morris, Chief Executive Officer of MICROmega. "NOSA has a good working relationship with SDIC management and we are hoping to expand the scope of our engagement further." According to Morris "With South Africa being a member of BRICS, this type of information sharing will hopefully grow to the other member countries, particularly given what NOSA has to offer from an HSE perspective"
